

1st Prototype

For the first paper prototype, I drew out the different pages for the site. The first page leads to the different universe choices and then to the option of being able to read or write a story. Halfway through, I realized how the first few pages could've have been improved because returning users may not want to go through the beginning pages again and would rather go straight to the stories. Also, users may want to just immediately go and write a story and not want to have to go through the various navigation pages to get there.

I drew out the globe and map that would hold the stories that we wanted to incorporate in our site and that really helped us visualize and get a sense of the direction we wanted our site to go. I added in a page for users to write stories but I realize I didn't create a page for what happens after the user submits a story. This prototype really helped me understand all the important details we need to consider for the site.

A day in the life of...

Read, ~~share~~
Share your experiences.
Read other people's stories

explore

These stories and experiences are real.

→

Choose a Universe

RACE

gender sexuality

Welcome!

What would you like to do

Share a story Read a story

Read a story

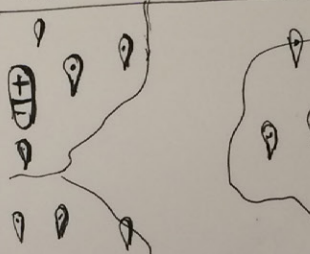

Welcome to the universe

Zoom in/out to discover stories

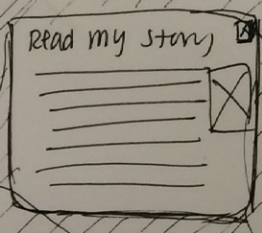

*

Choose a story...

*

Read my story

Write a story

Categories...

title story...

save submit

A day in the life of ...

Share your experiences.
Read ~~these~~ stories.
These experiences are real

explore

Share a story

universe

These are real issues in this world

write